

Name : VIDHAYARAJAN J.

Class : MCA - I.

Subject : Business Communication

Date : 2026-02-28

Type : CCE - 01

Roll no : 2202561

Q1) Explain the need of communication.

Communication is the process of exchanging information, ideas, thoughts and feelings between individuals or groups.

It plays a vital role in personal life as well as organizations.

To share information:

Communication helps in transmitting information from one person to another. In organizations, it ensures that employees understand policies, goals, and instructions clearly.

To achieve organizational goals:

Effective communication aligns individual efforts with organizational objectives. It helps in coordinating activities and ensuring smooth workflow.

For decision making:

Managers require accurate and timely information for making decisions. Communication provides the necessary data and feedback required for effective decision making.

To Build Relationships:

Communication strengthens relationships among employees, managers, customers and stakeholders. It promotes trust, cooperation and teamwork.

To Avoid conflicts and misunderstanding:
clear communication reduces confusion and misunderstandings. It helps in resolving issues quickly and maintaining harmony within the organization.

(Q2) Explain different types of communication.
communication can be classified into different types based on direction, method and expression. The main types are:

verbal communication:

this involves the use of spoken or written words to convey a message.

oral communication: Face to face conversation, meetings, phone calls, presentations.

written communication: letters, emails, reports, notices, messages.

It's clear and direct but may lead to misunderstandings if not properly expressed.

Non verbal communication:

this includes communication without words. it involves body language, facial expressions, gestures, posture, eye contact and tone of voice. Non verbal signals often express feelings and attitudes.

Formal communication:

This follows the official channels within organization. it can be Upward.

Downward.
Horizontal.

it maintains discipline and order in the organization.

informal communication:

Also known as the grapevine communication. It does not follow official channels and occurs casually among employees. It is the best way sometimes spread rumors.

Q3) Explain types of listeners also give tips to be a good listener:

Listening is an important part of communication. Effective listening improves understanding and relationships.

Types of Listeners:

Active Listener:

An Active Listener ^{Paye} ~~play~~ full attention, understands the message, responds appropriately, and gives feedback. This type of listener is focused and engaged.

passive listener:

passive listener hears the message but does not actively respond or show involvement. They may understand the message but do not provide feedback.

Selective Listener:

A selective listener listen only to the part of the message that interest them and ignore the rest. This may lead to misunderstanding.

Attentive Listener

An attentive listener carefully listen and show interest, but may not actively participate in discussion.

Critical Listener:

A critical listener analyze and evaluate the message before accepting it. This type is common in decision making situations.